Most of the web page styling was done by me, like the various themes button, the navigation bar layout, scroll bar customization where it's black and purple normally, but different colour in solarized themes. The main template background, animation and other css properties that we see are mainly done by me except the new joke button and tweet hover customization. Basic html and jss were given to me by other members, and I added the theme javascript settings and other css settings.

The webpage turned from this

To  this:

After all the css and js were done.
